Warning against risks connected with participation in cryptocurrency trading

Everyone engaging in trading of goods, real or virtual including cryptocurrencies incurs a significant level of risk. Prices of goods in markets have no permanent nature and are subject to constant fluctuation. If we are in possession of a certain asset and its price rises, we register gain, if the price decreases we incur loss. Any asset can both gain value and become worthless over time. The same principles apply to cryptocurrencies.

When trading cryptocurrency you incur an additional risk, one that generally does not occur when trading official currency and goods. For most currencies their value is moderated to a certain degree by governments or other legal entities, or is based on value of raw materials or tangible assets. The value of cryptocurrency is based on technological development and the level of trust in the market and its participants. Cryptocurrencies have no centralized issuer, no one centrally controls their trading.

The value of cryptocurrencies is determined solely by the market mechanism of supply and demand. Cryptocurrency in itself is not a service and does not fulfil any needs. It solely functions as a means of payment or a medium of monetary value. Cryptocurrency can be exchanged for a product or service, if the provider or supplier of the service deems so fit. Cryptocurrency can be also transferred electronically to another person, stored or exchanged against fiat currency.

Cryptocurrency price is fundamentally vulnerable to fluctuations of market participants' confidence levels and other economic and extra-economic factors, e.g. technological ones. Taking into account the above mentioned information we urge you to carefully consider whether the risk levels connected with trading cryptocurrency are acceptable for you.

Changes to the Terms

We may change these Terms from time to time. The changes will not be retroactive, and the most current version of the Terms, which will always be at <https://www.coinerro.com/downloadTerms>, will govern our relationship with you. We will try to notify you of material changes to the Terms. By continuing to access or use the Service after those changes become effective, you agree to be bound by the changed Terms.
